

A Message from the Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program

Thank you for your interest in applying to the Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program 2021-2022. The health, safety and security of our Fulbright participants is our highest priority. Like you, The Fulbright Program is closely monitoring the recent events, and our guidance on the current global situation response can be found here.

As of today, the Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program is moving forward in preparation for the 2021-2022 academic year, and we look forward to continuing to foster mutual understanding. We encourage you to continue preparing your application using these resources:

1. Connect with Fulbright alumni in your field or region of interest. Learning more about their experiences may help you craft a more impactful project statement.
2. Attend a live or recorded webinar Your questions will be answered by program staff, alumni, and/or Fulbright Commission representatives.
3. Request an advising session with program staff at IIE to discuss topics including: eligibility, appropriate awards, potential host institutions, and application tips.

Can't join us live? All of our webinars are recorded and archived on our website. To view more upcoming and archived webinars, visit our Webinar Schedule.

The deadline to apply for most awards in the 2021-2022 Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program competition is September 15, 2020. Please consult the Awards Catalog for deadlines related to IEA Seminars and the Arctic Initiative. U.S. citizenship is required.

Please reach out with any questions.
